Overview

Rhode Island's economy includes large private companies in the health care, financial services, marine products, defense and manufacturing sectors. Firms headquartered in Rhode Island include CVS Pharmacy, Hasbro and Amica Insurance. The state also hosts large divisions of such companies as Fidelity Investments, Metropolitan Insurance and General Dynamics.

Rhode Island is a leading center of higher education, with such institutions as Brown University, the University of Rhode Island, Johnson & Wales and Bryant University. In addition, the U.S. Navy has long had a significant presence in the Newport area, home to the Naval Undersea Warfare Center and the U.S. Naval War College. Government and non-profit community service agencies employ significant numbers of workers, and Rhode Island's well-developed tourism industry serves visitors from all over the world.

The diversified nature of the state's economy helps to cushion Rhode Island from steep economic downturns. The top 100 firms and institutions in Rhode Island employ an estimated 156,000 persons, which is one-third of total non-farm wage and salary employment in the state, excluding municipal employment.

Important Notes

1. Employment figures shown in this report are self-reported by companies and organizations.
2. Employment at individual companies and organizations often changes rapidly.
3. Local municipal employment is not included in this list.
